IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America,

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume, among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation. — We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator, with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just Powers from the consent of the governed. — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. — Provinces indeed well dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly, all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing exclusively the same Object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security. — Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies, and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. — The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct Object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. — To prove this let Facts be submitted to a candid world. — He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good. — He has foisted upon us numerous Laws of immediate and grievous imposition, untying suspended in their operation, till his Assent should be obtained, and when it is suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them. — He has refused to, pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, who by those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right so宝贵 to them and formidable, to grants only. — He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures. — He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his encroachments on the rights of the people. — He has refused for a long time after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected, whereby the Legislative powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining, in the mean time exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within. — He has endeavoured to prevent the population of these States, for that purpose, by disarming the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners, refusing to pass laws to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of lands. — He has obstructed the Administration of Justice by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary powers. — He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries. — He has created a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither persons of Opposites to harass our people and eat out their substance. — He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies, without the consent of our Legislatures. — He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil power. — He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws, giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation. — For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us. — For preventing them by a mock Trial, from punishment for any Misdemeanors which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States. — For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world. — For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent. — For depriving us in many cases of the Benefits of Trial by Jury. — For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offences. — For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighbouring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries, so as to make it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies. — For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws, and altering fundamentally the Forms of our governments. — For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with Power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever. — He has abdicated Government here, by leaving us out of his Protection and leaving His agents here. — He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people. — He is at this time transporting large numbers of foreign Mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun, with circumstances of cruelty & perfidy, paralleled only in the most barbarous ages and totally unexampled in the History of a civilized nation. — He has constituted our fellow Citizens, taken captive on the high seas, to bear Arms against their Country, to be us the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to sell themselves by their Hands. — He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has massacred in the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions. — In every stage of these Oppressions we have Petitioned for Relief in the most humble terms. Our repeated Petitions have been answered by repeated injury. — A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may inform a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people. — We have been wanting in attention to our British Brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their Legislatures to extend an usurpation, over us. — We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. — We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them to be the ties of our common Country to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. — They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of humanity. — We must therefore acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our separation, and hold them as we hold the rest of mankind. — Enemies in War, in Peace Friends. —

We, therefore, the Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name and by authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be, Free and Independent States; that they are, and of Right ought to be, totally, disjoined, and as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to, by, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may, of right, do. — And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.

In 1775, Americans finally took up arms against their British overseers. Ahead could lie only freedom, oppression, or death. They chose freedom, and their cry echoed across the newborn country. Lives must be sacrificed, goals must be attained. Revolution was the only answer.

To declare independence from Britain was an audacious first step on the road to freedom. Angered by the Stamp Act of 1765, the Townshend Revenue Act of 1767, and the Tea Act of 1773, American patriots were forced to rebel. The most radical revolt stemmed from the Tea Act. Boston insurgents attired themselves in Indian dress, boarded British vessels, and heaved 342 tea chests overboard. The British counter-acted by imposing the discordant Intolerable Acts in 1774. Five months later, the First Continental Congress in Philadelphia was established to unite the colonies.

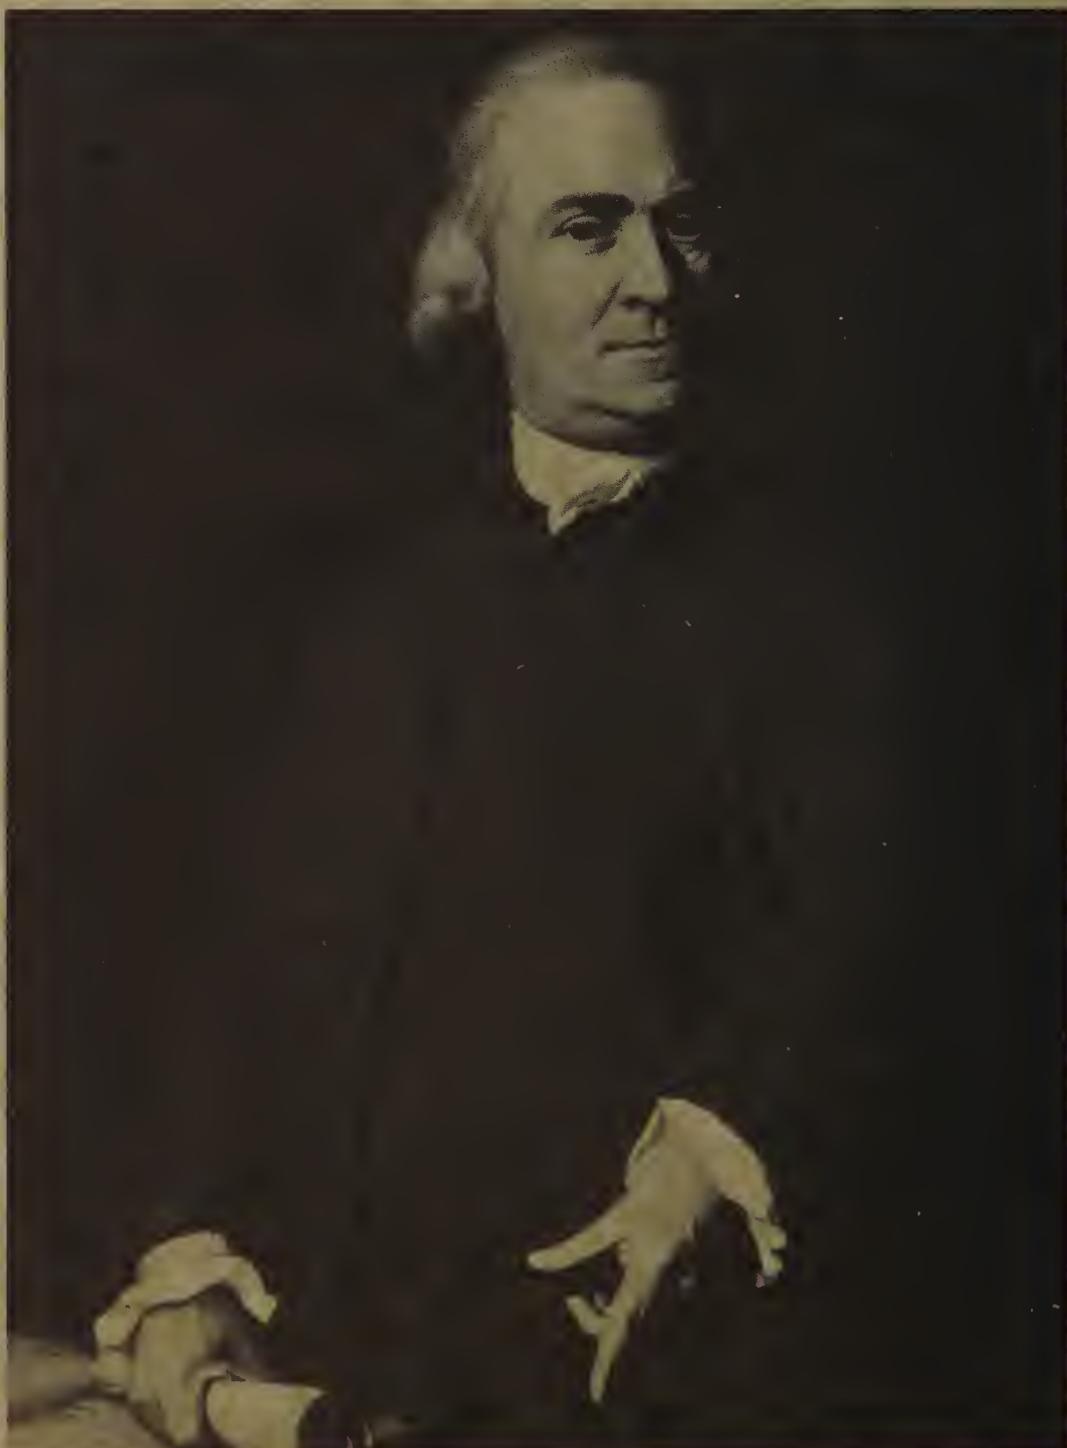

On April 19, 1775, the first confrontation with the British soldiers occurred at Lexington and Concord - "the shot heard around the world." But this was only a prelude to irrevocable events. The first real battle between the colonists and the Redcoats came two months later on June 17, 1775, at Bunker Hill. This commenced the war which endured until 1783.

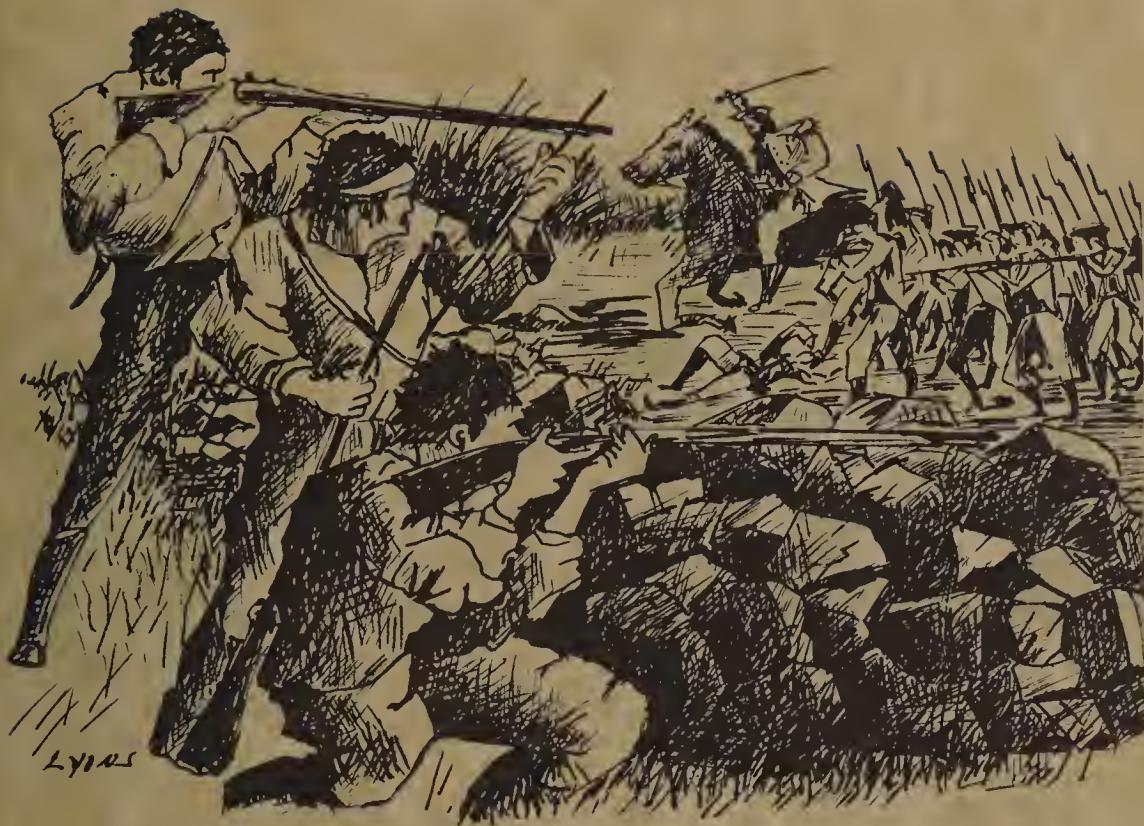

Among celebrated New England Revolutionaries were Samuel Adams, Ethan Allen, John Hancock, and Thomas Paine. A devoted contemporary of John Hancock, Attorney James Otis Jr. acquired the title, Otis the Patriot. He was born in West Barnstable, Massachusetts. His father was a prominent Barnstable selectman and moderator. A Harvard Law graduate, Otis practiced law in Plymouth and lived in Boston for two years. He was elected to the House of Boston early in his career. He first achieved fame for his defense of merchants against the Writs of Assistance. He was the prosecutor on the case, but his conscience forced him to defend these merchants. With patriotic intensity, he spoke before the council for three hours. Although the case was lost, this was not a defeat by any means.

Two months later, he was elected as Representative from Boston to the Mass. General Court. While in office, he wrote political articles. Among his published works, A VINDICATION OF THE CONDUCT OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF MASS. BAY and THE RIGHTS OF BRITISH COLONIES ASSERTED AND PROVED, were most noted. In 1769, in a Boston coffee house, Otis was badly beaten. Suffering severe head injuries, he was placed under the guardianship of his brother, Sam Allen Otis. At this time, he moved back to Barnstable.

It is ironic to note that Otis' hometown, Barnstable, was the only town out of fifteen which failed to vote for independence. Barnstable failed to instruct its Representatives to vote in favor of the District of Columbia. Barnstable, as the county seat, should have set an example. Complaints arose pertaining to proper representation. Although the majority of people were patriots, loyalists resided there also.

Due to his head injury, Otis lived the remainder of his life plagued by insanity. Days after General Washington's Proclamation at the end of the Revolutionary War, Otis was struck by lightning and killed instantly. He will long be remembered for his spirited enthusiasm. Throughout his life, his anger was emanated through his fiery speeches. John Adams summarized, "Otis - a rapid torrent of impetuous eloquence . . ." Otis was Cape Cod's greatest contribution to the colonies' fight for independence.

Although James Otis was the most famous Cape Cod patriot, other Cape men fought against the British in 1775. They divided into two separate regiments, guarding the coastline and answering alarms from Martha's Vineyard to Lewis Bay, Hyannis. These regiments were dissolved following the Revolutionary War and were superseded by the National Guard. They were reinstated for Bicentennial purposes in 1974. One branch of this regiment met in Barnstable. Hence, it was called the Barnstable County Militia. Formed in 1685, Barnstable able was well established and played a key role in Revolutionary affairs.

"The shot heard around the world" was not public knowledge on the Cape until 24 hours later. The reaction was one of shock. The inexorable drive for freedom from oppression had been strong on the Cape. Threats of violence were uttered, but now that war had come, it was difficult for the full impact to sink in. The next day, 16 Cape Cod men headed to Boston to join the rebels.

Soldiers were not the Cape's sole contribution to the Revolution. Boots, beefs, and blankets (the 3B's) were sent from the Cape to the battlegrounds. Twenty-one vessels, from shaving mills to ships, were commanded by Cape Codders. One hundred twenty-six guns were carried by Cape volunteers. During the Revolution, Cape Cod industries were affected. The principle industry, whaling, suffered greatly and never quite recovered. The loss of man power and the disappearance of whales to other feeding grounds caused the deterioration of the whaling industry. Prior to this, whaling had been a major economic source. The art of whaling was first practiced on Cape Cod. The first Cape Codders to profit from the whales never left dry land. They were, in fact, not whalers at all, but farmers. They found dead whales washed up on the beach and stripped them of their blubber. This was a frequent pastime, for the whales were incredibly abundant. Autumn and winter were the best seasons for whale hunting. Coincidentally, these were the off months for farmers, who were able to reap the full benefits of this peculiar crop without neglecting their farms.

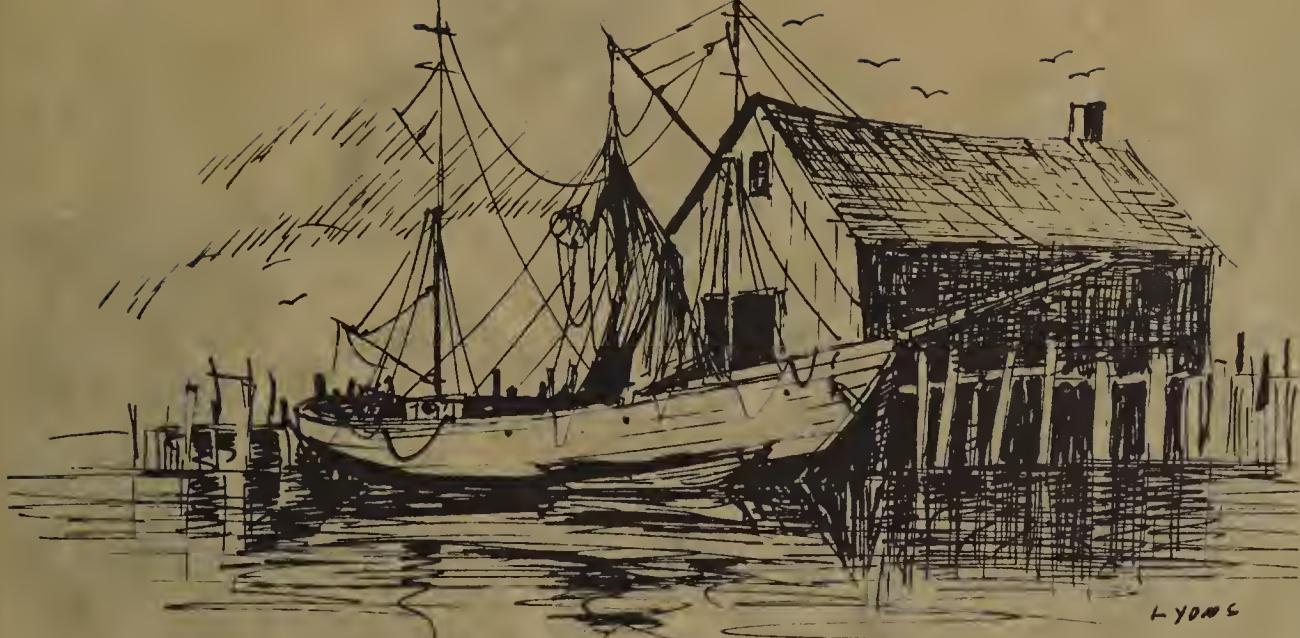

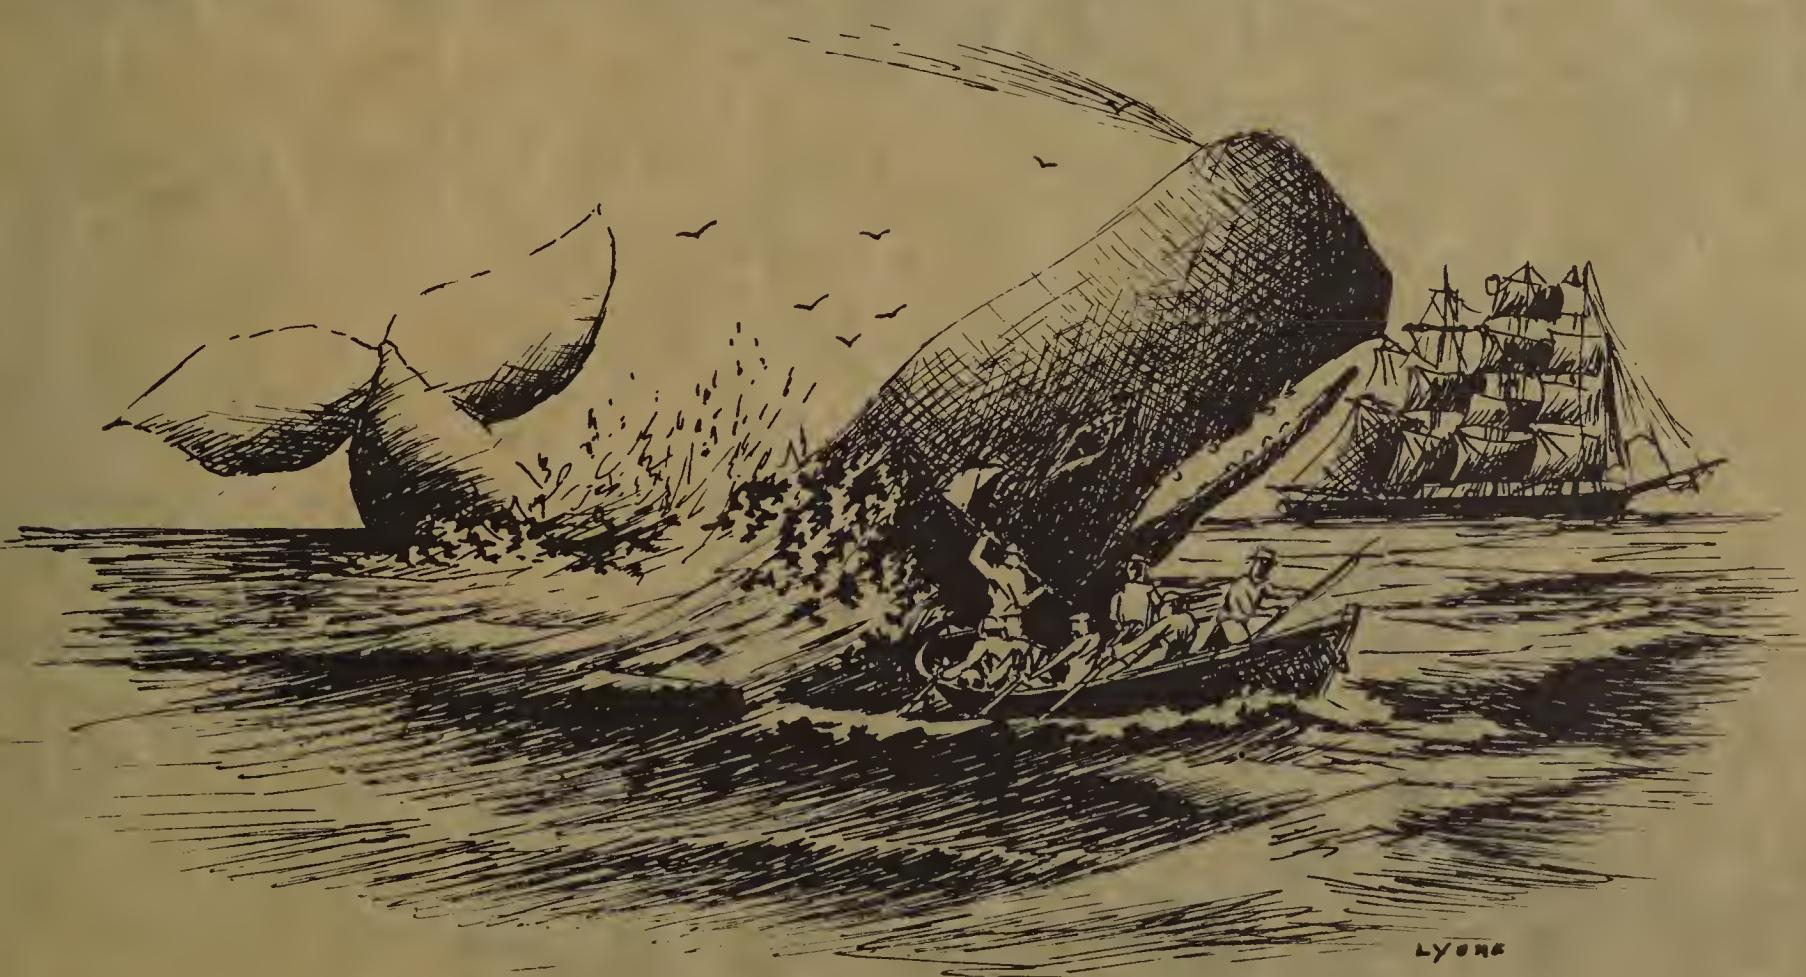

Although this job was bloody, the townspeople looked upon the industry with pride, particularly since the profits were immediate. Before long, some began to wish that whales would come ashore often enough to provide steady work. Cape farmers were transformed into whalers by the 1700's.

In 1760, forty Harwich men went to Nantucket to undertake the whaling business. At this time, whales were common in Nantucket Sounds. Launched from shore, whalers pursued their prey. When whales left, whalers built larger crafts to follow them to other ports. As whaling and political atmosphere changed, Benjamin Bangs, a successful whaler recalled, "Whaling voyages are not so good this year as last year. Ye noise of war spoils us all." Because of this, attention was drawn to the cod fisheries. In 1802, fifteen to twenty vessels were employed in shoal fishing. Two hundred persons were engaged in cod fishing.

The Fishing Industry began on the Cape prior to 1620, when European fishermen inhabited shacks and drank rum with the Indians. As time progressed, Cape Codders caught only enough fish for their own families. They had been too busy farming to go fishing for a living. Inhabitants soon realized the waste of great schools of cod and mackerel. They wondered why money wasn't redirected into the treasury.

The Cape developed a fishing fleet. Harwich, Orleans, and Barnstable became the chief ports on the Cape. With the onset of the revolution, whalemen, merchants, and fishermen were swept from the seas. After the war, only four of Chatham's twenty-seven ships remained. This was characteristic of the Cape's dilemma. Although a costly victory, the Cape townspeople felt they had done their duty to their country and were proud indeed. The revolution interfered greatly with the seafaring business. Shipping was ruined and the shores were invaded by hostile warships.

When whaling and fishing subsided, a new industry arose. One gentleman humorously remarked, "I put up my chart and glass and took to raising cranberry sass." In 1845, the first commercial bogs in the country were planted in Harwich. Alvin Cahoon experimented with the cultivation of the vines in 1859. An acre that was cultivated reportedly yielded ten thousand berries. In the autumn, the cranberry harvest is always a colorful sight on the Cape. Depot Street in North Harwich housed a cranberry plant with its own railroad. It employed approximately two hundred people. For more than fifty years, growers had berries shipped from here to plants where sauces, juices, and other cranberry items were processed. Cranberries were once so important that everyone who could helped to harvest the berries in the fall. The start of school was postponed so that children could help.

In recent years, the Cape Cod area has been producing roughly one-half of the nation's cranberries. Massachusetts is number one in the amount of cranberries grown in the United States. Approximately 870,101 barrels are yielded per year. Since canning methods have been improved, the demand for the sauce has grown into more than a seasonal novelty.

Thus, whaling, fisheries, and the cranberry industry constituted Cape Cod's economy preceding, during, and following the revolution.

ORDERS FOR PICKING CRANBERRIES - YEAR 1863

1. No one allowed to have things that hold less than four quarts.
2. All must pick their rows clean the first time, and not go over them twice.
3. All must obey the overseer or be discharged.
4. All traveling over the vine is forbidden, except when it is strictly necessary.
5. All must have fruit clean before measuring, without rotten fruit or dirt. The measures will be level and not heaped as formerly.
6. All berries to be picked up if knocked off onto the ground while picking.
7. When a row is commenced, it must be finished by the same before changing or taking another.

For picking and conforming to the above rules, we shall pay four cents a bushel when picking is over.

Barnstable County was created for convenience and a better government for the people of Plymouth County. Known as the "county seat" and "Shire Town," Barnstable County originally constituted Barnstable, Sandwich, Yarmouth, and Eastha (Eastham). In addition, it included "plantations" in Falmouth, Harwich, Chatham, and Sippecan. To our knowledge the County House was built before the revolution. It housed deeds, birth certificates, wills, and indispensable documents. In 1827, these records were demolished by a fire. In the following years, 1831 to 1832, a three-man board of county commissioners was established. This committee was sanctioned to spend public funds for the construction of a new Barnstable County Courthouse. Enlarged and updated, it still stands today.

Once a "plantation" in Barnstable County, Harwich was incorporated on September 14, 1694. Patrick Butler walked 85 miles to Boston to obtain the Act of Incorporation. During the reign of William and Mary in 1694, the town charter of Harwich was granted.

Harrich? Never heard of it. What's that ye say? Oh, Har-wich. Ye'd like to know the turn to take for Har-wich, eh? Well, now, let me study a mite. 'Pears to me, Ma'am, ye take the starboard tack, along that one there, about two miles to Harwich Center - that is, if I ain't picking the wrong one of the two. How's that?

Well, no, I can't say as I'm sartin sure of it. Oh, yes, I'm a native. Been living here to home ever since I quit going to sea, and that was back in '98

What say? Why ain't I sure of the road? Well, Ma'am, I've been around the world eight times in my day, but I ain't never had no business over to Harwich. One version of this was written in an old Cape Cod Magazine; with slight differentiation, this same tale is told in every town on the Cape.

Settled by emigrants as early as 1677, Harwich extended across the Cape from Nantucket Sound to Cape Cod Bay. It joined Old Eastha on the east, and the territory of Monomoyick, now Chatham, Brewster, and Orleans. Harwich's name was derived from the old maritime town in Essex County, England, 60 miles northeast of London. It is the only town of that name in America. Harwich and Brewster were united under the same name until 1803.

At the time of incorporation, it was enjoined by the law that every town in the province must have a schoolmaster to teach the youth to read and write. One hundred families or householders were ordered to set up a grammar school and provide room and board for the schoolmaster. However, Harwich's population was smaller than the number required by law to have a school of reading and writing. By 1708 there were enough families to establish a school. The matter was brought before the town once again and provisions were made for the schoolmaster. The requirements for a schoolmaster were that he be of good morals, and well instructed in Latin, Greek, and English. The schoolmaster was held second in respect to the ministers.

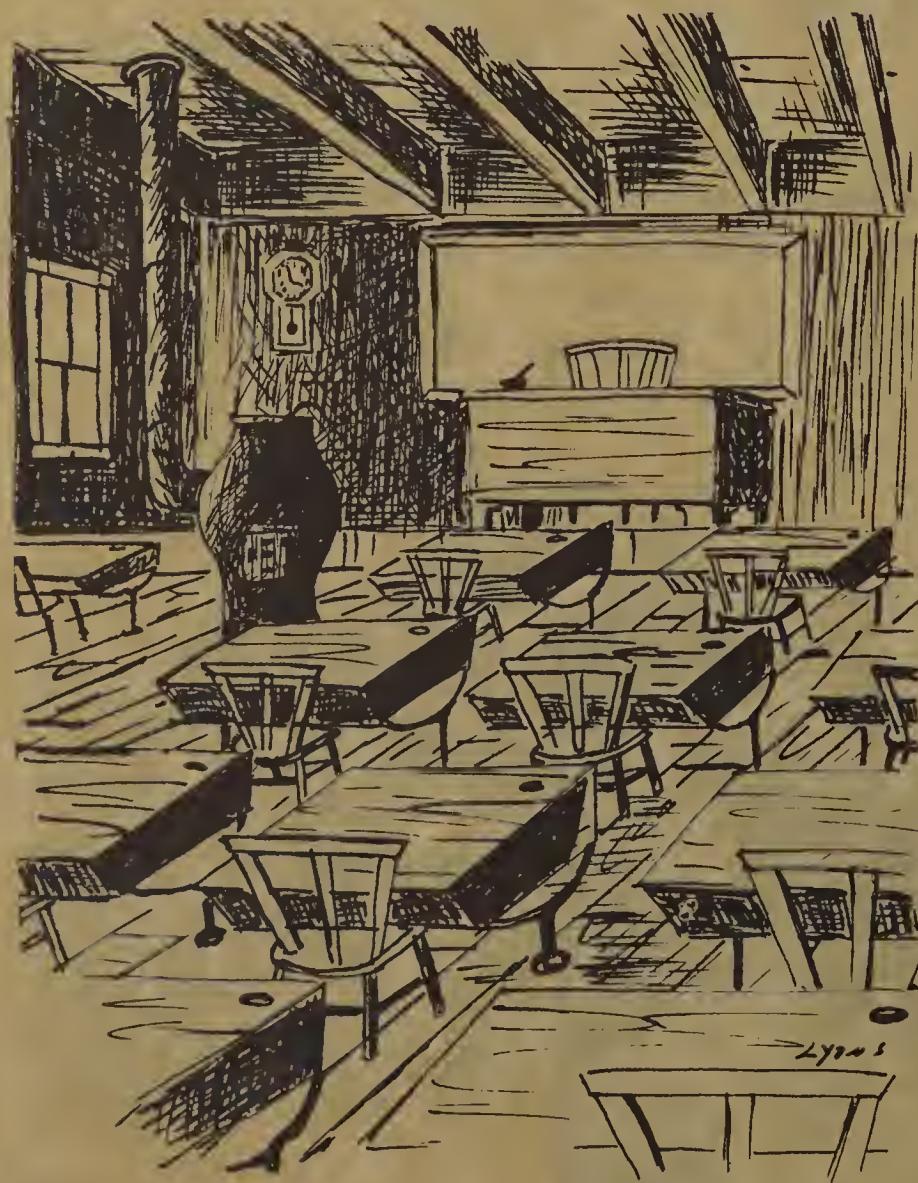

Since there was no schoolhouse in 1713, the town, paid a pence a week for a convenient house. The schoolmaster made a circuit in seven months of the divided districts. These districts were called "societies." Engaged as master in 1715, Mr. Philip Selew was a well-qualified teacher from Bordeaux. Although first educated in ministry, he chose teaching as his vocation. He received forty-eight pounds a year as salary and remained a teacher in Harwich for over fifty years.

In 1753 the South Parish, now Harwich, authorized a deal with the schools. No school had been erected and more schoolmasters and schoolmistresses were needed to circulate the area. A precinct was chosen to settle the school. A prominent Harwich citizen, Benjamen Nickerson, contributed ten pence for a schoolhouse room. Two years later, the court empowered precincts to raise money for schools and buildings. The South precinct chose Samuel Nickerson, James Gage, and Reuben Eldridge to settle the schools. The first known schoolhouse was called "Old Red Top." It was built east of Queen Anne's Corner, on what is now Buck's Pond. The dimensions were twenty-five by twenty feet.

Preceding the Revolutionary War, the school rooms of the time were quite plain with knotty pine walls and floor, sturdy beams, few windows, and a fireplace. They accommodated very few students. Attending these schools were boys ranging from tots to adolescents. Most girls remained home to help with family chores, but a small number did attend. In "Old Red Top," backless benches did not exist. Seats and desks were used. Subjects included cyphering, and the 3R's - reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic.

During the Revolutionary period, schools of Harwich were not well sustained, owing to limited means at the town's command. For not providing a schoolmaster according to law, the town was presented with a complaint in 1779. Following the war, requirements were made to keep schools in top condition. Joseph Smith was appointed schoolmaster of the sixteen schools in the societies under a graded system. It consisted of nine schoolhouses.

BROOKS ACADEMY

FORMERLY

PINE GROVE SEMINARY

The first vocational course on Cape Cod was the school for navigation established by Sidney Brooks in 1844. Brooks was headmaster for twenty-two years. The building was erected under the supervision of Mr. Luther Gifford, an accomplished architect of Syracuse, New York. After completion, it was known as Pine Grove Seminary, and was noted as a leading academic institution for over twenty years. Along with its course in navigation, the first of its kind in America, English and higher mathematics were taught to college bound students. About fifty pupils were enrolled under the care of Brooks, a teacher of the Chatham Academy. A Barnstable patriot stated, "This institution is situated in the central part of the town of Harwich, a little retired from the village; and in the location and arrangements of the building and the contiguous grounds. It offers a pleasant retreat for scholars of both sexes, who may leave the cities during the summer months to enjoy the benefit of the sea air of our healthy Cape towns. There will be four quarters of eleven weeks each, a vacation of two weeks succeeding each term . . ."

Tuition for English studies was $3.50. Higher math studies (including navigation and surveying) were $4.00. Language studies cost $4.50. Compare these to today's tuitions!

Pine Grove Seminary was operated from 1844 to 1866. Sold to the town of Harwich in 1869, it was then used as a public school. We may still observe the powder house, used between 1770 and 1864, on the front lawn. It can be assumed from its size that during those years it was somewhat peaceful.

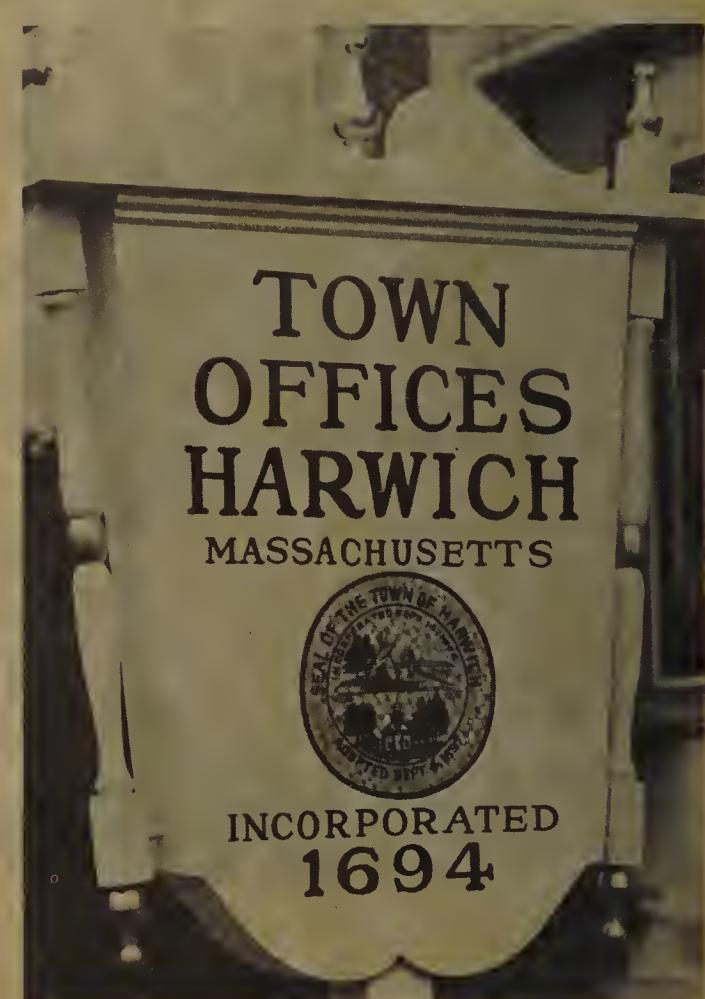

In 1881, the first high school was established in Harwich Center with A. L. Wood as principal. He was succeeded by L. T. McKenney six years later.

The late Colonel H. C. Brooks placed one thousand dollars in the Cape Cod Five Cent Savings Bank. The interest was to be expended annually for a suitable medal for every school in town. This medal was to be presented to the pupil who was most proficient in composition, letter writing, and excellence in behavior. This tradition has been carried on throughout the years, and still exists today.

The size of the classes differed greatly in the early 1900's as compared to today. In 1909, the graduation class consisted of less than twelve young people. In 1910, five out of the twenty who started as freshmen several years before were graduated. Many students never completed their high school education. In their freshman year, Roscoe Chase and Earl Chase "tired of school duties and decided to abandon them." Esther Chase, the vice-president of her class, dropped out for some unknown reason. In 1911, Roscoe Chase returned to school and led Harwich's football team to victory against Dennis High School. He dropped out once again after the football season to go barging.

In 1930, the school board of Harwich stated that the conditions of its high school were far from satisfactory. The sanitary conditions were poor and many repairs and changes were needed.

Harwich Centre, Mass.

CLASS OF 1884 - FIRST GRADUATION RULES AND REGULATIONS

1. School room shall not be opened nor scholars admitted to the same until the arrival of the teacher which shall be at least ten minutes before the beginning of each session of school and scholars shall not be allowed to remain in the school room during the noon intermission.

2. No scholar shall be admitted after the time for opening the school, unless accompanied by such excuse either verbal or written as shall be satisfactory to the teacher, and every scholar admitted after either session has been opened five minutes shall be considered tardy.

3. Every teacher shall make a faithful report to the school committee of such scholars as have not been absent or tardy during the term, and the names shall be published in the annual school report.

4. The recesses of the sexes shall be separate or together as the principal or teacher shall deem proper; if together they shall not exceed fifteen minutes, if separate, ten minutes each.

5. The pupils of one department shall not visit any other department unless especially permitted or sent by their teacher.

6. No pupil shall be allowed to use tobacco IN ANY FORM within or about any of the school buildings or to render the schoolroom filthy by spitting on the floor.

7. Any pupil injuring the school buildings or furniture shall be held accountable for the injury committed.

Rev. Stat. Chap. 161 Sect. 67 - "Whoever willingly and maliciously or wantonly and without cause destroys, defaces, mars or injures any schoolhouse, church or other building erected or used for the purpose of education or religious instruction or for general diffusion of knowledge, or any other out buildings, fences, wells or appurtenances of the above or any furniture, apparatus, or other property belonging or connected with such buildings shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the jail not exceeding one year."

8. No male shall be allowed upon or within the grounds or out buildings belonging to the female portion of the school.

9. Every teacher shall have a special care that his or her room is kept properly ventilated.

10. Ball playing, archery, and similar amusements shall not be allowed within the school or ante-rooms, nor in dangerous proximity to school buildings.

11. Disorderly, rude conduct, boisterous play, violent screaming and similar improprieties shall not be allowed in the school or ante-rooms, and teachers shall be especially careful in this matter. DANCING IS STRICTLY FORBIDDEN.

12. Pupils guilty of acts of insubordination; of disrespectful conduct towards the teachers; of obscenities in speech or writing or in any way representing an idea of impropriety; or a wanton defacement of any part of the buildings or of repeated acts of disobedience may be dismissed by the teacher and at the discretion of the Examining Company may be expelled.

13. The teachers of every department must consider themselves intrusted with the care of the school buildings both inside and outside and will be held responsible for any damage or defacement done to the same during the term for which they are engaged unless they can show that reasonable exertions to discover the offending person have been made.

14. Each teacher will be required to give a receipt to the local committee of their section for all school apparatus delivered to them at the commencement of each term and will be held to return such apparatus at the end of each term in good condition as when received, or make good any damage done thereto and it shall be the duty of the local committee to see that the rule is enforced.

15. The Janitor shall have a general superintendence of the scholars, school buildings and grounds, ESPECIALLY during the absence of the teacher: and it shall be his duty to correct any impropriety of speech or action in and about the school buildings; keep the house comfortable and suitable for use, giving particular attention to cleanliness and the careful preservation of the school buildings.

16. Any teacher failing to enforce these rules FAITHFULLY and SUCCESSFULLY shall be considered unfit for the position and may be removed at the discretion of the Examining Board Committee. Per Order School Committee, Harwich Sept. 1, 1873

Among the other influences, the strident religious doctrine of the early settlers was most important. This doctrine minimized innovations and encouraged restraint in the use of artifacts.

The oldest Congregational Church in Harwich was established on November 12, 1747. Its first minister was Reverend Ed Pell. In 1846, under Reverend Cyrus Stone's regulation, "No church fellowship with those who hold entreat their fellow men as chattels or who approved the system of human slavery." This church's abolitionist attitude became widespread across the Nation.

No less than 15 religious societies have been organized within the limits of the present town of Harwich. These have included the Separatists, Free Will Baptists, Reformed Methodists, and Wesleyans. With the advent of the Great Awakening, a strange and troublesome sect called the "Newlights" or "Comeouters" arose. These people distressed and bewildered Reverend Stone and other faithful church members. They sneaked into meetings and in the middle of the service stood up, shouted, and sang songs of heresy. Henry C. Ketteridge relates, "When under the spell of their mania, they walked along tops of fences instead of on the sidewalks; affected a strange springing gait, and conversed by singing instead of ordinary speech.

burnt to the ground 21 years later. It was rebuilt by Chester Snow in 1885. Upon his death, Caleb Chase of West Dennis purchased the building and subsequently gave it to the town. A marvel of construction, it was perfect for graduation ceremonies. On November 17, 1965, this 79 year old building, under a mandate of the voters of Harwich, was torn down. New tastes in architecture, mounting costs of maintenance and repair, lack of parking for automobiles, and the reluctance to climb the rickety stairs led to its demolition. Nearly two months and $16,800 were needed to destroy the 104 foot structure.

Pine Grove Seminary, presently the Town Office and Historical Society, is a visible landmark which remains today. Brooks Academy, a structure of classical architecture, contains a fascinating display of early Harwich life and history. This building is noted as the location of the first courses taught in seamanship and navigation. Extending across a large portion of Harwich Center is Broadbrooks Village. Eight buildings and a park encompass the area. Two of the original buildings, owned by Ebenezer Broadbrooks, stand today. Incidentally, his son Ebenezer Broadbrooks II was the first postmaster in Harwich.

Other landmarks in Harwich are the Five Cents Saving Bank and the Pilgrim Congregational Church, noted for its beautiful carillons (chiming bells). In 1880, Henry Brooks donated the public library to Harwich. He also gave numerous trees to Broadbrooks Village. Old Windmill, also called Uncle Nathan's Mill, overlooks the territory of Pleasant Bay. This windmill, along with Herring River, gives Harwich a beauteous landscape. Another beautiful setting is Wychemere Harbor. It was once a half-mile track for trotting horses.

A historic landmark located on Kendrick Road in East Harwich is the Indian Praying Stone. Praying Stones are commonly found near Indian burial grounds. Ralph W. Cashen, Sr., a member of the Harwich Historical Commission explains what the praying stone means. "Indians were not allowed to cry. They trained themselves or were trained from an early age to be silent, probably because of danger from wild animals." There are deep imprints in the stone, one as deep as three and one quarter inches. Cashen continues, "The Indians did their grieving by pounding the praying stone with smaller stones made for this purpose." Another archaic Indian hunting and fishing site is on Bell's Neck Road. This camp dates back to five or six thousand years ago.

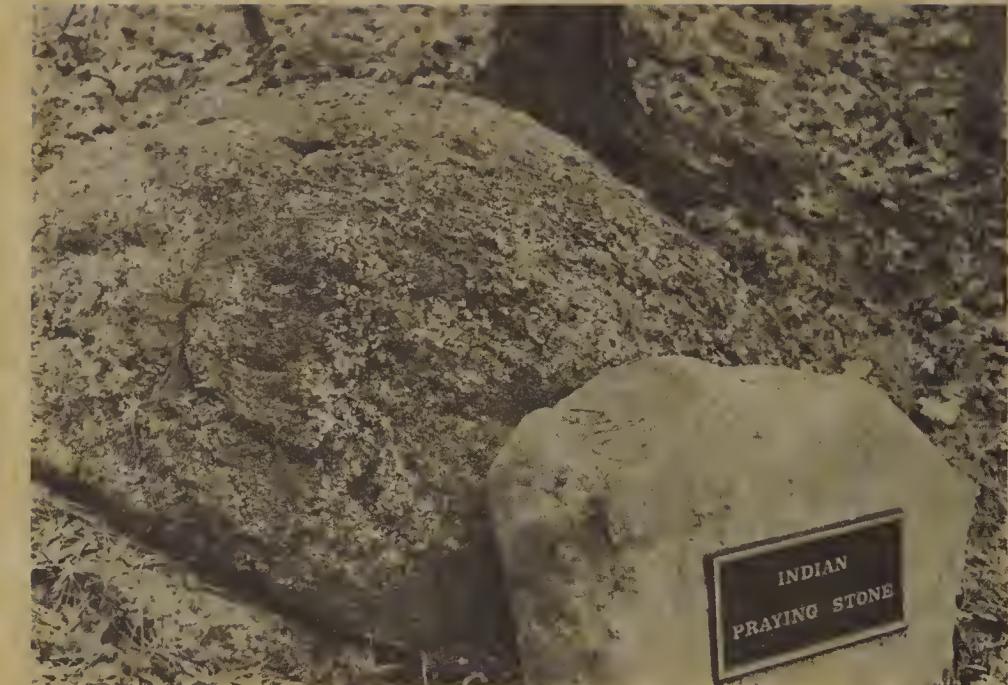

Landmarks relay signs of the past to present day life. They hold insights into previous times. Everyone dreams of the past and landmarks provide a tangible basis to remember yesterday.

The Pilgrim Memorial Monument, located in Provincetown, is perhaps the most famous one on the Cape. It stands 252 feet 6 inches in height and commemorates the landing spot of the Pilgrims in 1620. The monument is said to be the tallest all-granite structure in the U.S.

The prime landmark in the village of Harwich was the Exchange Building. A three-story Victorian style creation, it was used as a Junior Theater, town meeting place, opera house, and a roller skating rink. Built in 1855, it Probably the most influential landmark on Cape Cod is its architectural style. Antique Cape architecture has been able to weather many of the pressures of progress while other communities have allowed that heritage to erode. Constructed in prosperous whaling and shipping days, the sturdy homes were preserved when the Cape's economy regressed. One example is the oldest house in Harwich - the Galvin Gifford House, built in the 1700's. It is located on the corner of Oak Street and Main Street. More recently, the influx of summer home owners has contributed to the salvation of the character or original structures. Cape Codders, in past years, have set aside an area within the town called a Historic District. Harwich's Historical District (55 acres) was the first to be accepted in the National Registry of Historical places. This concept is unique. The preservation of landmarks, whether man-made or natural, constitutes an attempt to restore Harwich's history.

This Bicentennial year commemorates not only the birth of a nation, but also its history. From the time of the Revolution, America has become a viable institution of progression and freedom. In doing so, the United States has set an auspicious precedent which other nations have sought to attain. For two-hundred years, men have strived to achieve the perfect society.

In retrospect, Massachusetts was one of the most important states in the Union. Boston patriots were the first to perform rebellious acts to free their country from tyranny. The first skirmish was fought on Massachusetts soil, followed by other vital battles. Although no battles took place on Cape Cod, manpower and patriotism were her contributions. Barnstable's James Otis drew many Cape Codders into the spirit of the war. He was a symbol of strength.

From then on, Cape Cod proceeded to develop into an important community. Whaling and fishing were the main source of income in the post-Revolutionary period. The cranberry industry has steadily grown into one of the largest in the nation. Cape Cod's school systems have progressed and Harwich's has emerged as one of the finest. Historical landmarks are a constant reminder of our forefathers and their ideals.

Today Cape Cod exhibits more character than it did two-hundred years ago. It owes this character to its ancestors, who helped to mold the Cape into its being. We now can only hope that the descendants will keep this character by remembering the traditions of "Old Cape Cod." It shall, indeed, glory in the celebration of its 200th anniversary.

Cape Cod

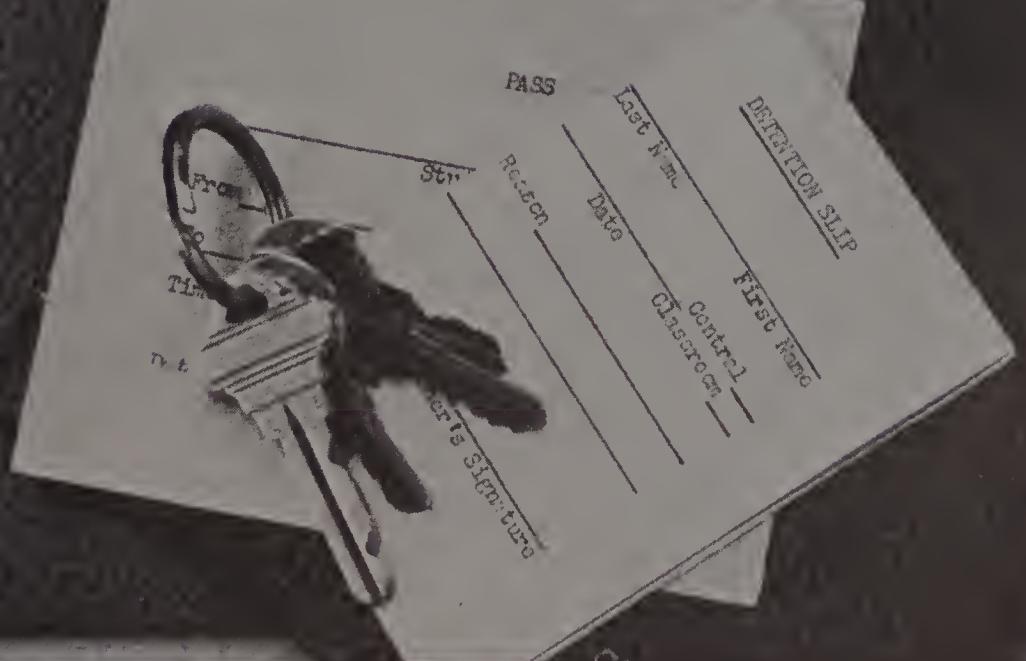

There is a little strip of land
That stretches out to sea
Where the skies are always bluer
And happy winds blow free.

A little bit of paradise
Set 'midst the sea and sod
Where sands are shining white and clear
For the feet of man to trod.
The sea around is very green
And sometimes lovely blue
And now and then when sun sinks low
O'er all is spread a rosy hue.
An Eden set beside the sea
A place to think with God
Where cares and burdens drift away
On a tide that sweep, Cape Cod.

It is not easy being mother, father, confidante, moral supporter, and drill sergeant for 130-plus energetic teenagers. But the job was done admirably by Mr. Glenn Bryant, our class advisor. For four years he has carried us valiantly through countless traumas - the annual money drives, the dances, our Junior Prom, and those wild class meetings.

For all his dedication, time, and stamina, we offer our most sincere thanks.

THANKS COACH

For the past twenty-three years, Harwich High School has been the home ground for one of the Cape's most outstanding basketball coaches. Charlie "Coach" Dunbar retires his title this year, leaving behind a memorable record of 247 wins, 160 losses. Of his twenty-three years, fifteen were spent contending in the Cape and Islands Championship Tournament. Throughout his coaching career, Mr. Dunbar has shown his teams a consistent spirit of fairness, good sportsmanship, and enthusiasm. This has earned him the affectionate title of "Charlie Harwich" and will keep his name a respected and well-liked one in Harwich for years to come.

A yearbook is a demanding and a time-consuming production that requires a lot of work and dedication - not to mention the countless hours spent in the yearbook office putting the whole thing together. The yearbook staff wishes to acknowledge that none of this would have been possible without the help of Mr. Ralph Davis. He has given his time and energy unceasingly so that we would have a yearbook we could be proud of.

From the staff and the Class of 1976, we thank you.

YOSHIKI TAKESHITA

An important part of our senior year, and consequently of our yearbook, was our AFS foreign exchange student, Yoshiki Takehita. Yoshi is from Fukui, Japan, and spent his visit here with the Adrian L'Heureux family of Pleasant Lake. Throughout the school year he has participated fully in all our activities, from the frequent parties to the Christmas Tree Sale. In November, Yoshi earned special acclaim in his role as Ito in our production of "Auntie Mame."

He has brought us all a small piece of the Orient; in his manner of speaking and thinking; in his gestures and his attitudes. Through him we had the chance of learning a little more about the Japanese culture and how it compared to our own. He showed us the differences between the American and Japanese educational systems. His own country is very strict and regimented in their schooling, while ours employs a more pliable system. Japanese students are not allowed to pick their own subject matter, for instance. But Yoshi feels this has helped him because it has broadened his scope of knowledge.

He admits to liking most American foods, and the free atmosphere in which teenagers here grow up.

Yoshi is basically a quiet, shy person, but this has not hindered his accumulating a long line of friends. He is warm and sincere, and has proven himself a credit to the AFS program.

After returning home to Japan this summer, Yoshi plans to attend a university to become an engineer.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank him for being a part of our class, and for helping to generate so much interest in the American Field Service. It is with love, Yoshi, that we dedicate this page to you.

"It seems like only yesterday I was on the verge of getting it all together."

CLASS HISTORY

In SEPTEMBER 1972 we entered high school and a new era of our lives. For the years between the ages of thirteen and seventeen, roughly, are in ways the most difficult, joyous, heartbreaking, happy, frustrating, and important years of a person's life. A time when just-past-childhood becomes not-quite-adulthood.

It was a year of the Olympics, a wheat deal, a Presidential election, Mark Spitz walked off with an unprecedented seven gold medals in swimming. The Russians walked off with several million tons of U.S. wheat at a bargain price, causing our bread prices to rise and citizens to complain. And Republican Richard Nixon walked off with forty-nine states, leaving his Democrat contender, George McGovern, only Massachusetts and Washington, D.C. And in Massachusetts, the only state of the fifty to go Democrat, Barnstable was the only county to go Republican.

The world's imagination was also caught in 1972 by an enigmatic genius, Bobby Fischer. He proved superior to Boris Spassky, the Russian incumbent, and became World Chess Champion in a hotly-contested series of games in Reykjavik, Iceland.

In 1973 the country was faced with the fourth Middle East war, known as the October war. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger invented "shuttle diplomacy" and patched together a cease-fire, much as he did in Vietnam in 1972, for which he received the Nobel Peace Prize. Also, LATE IN 1973, a strange affair known as Watergate broke upon the nation. In the following year it became the national preoccupation. Vice-President Spiro Agnew was replaced by then-Representative Gerald Ford. The entire Administration was shaken up, not only by the forced resignation of certain of Nixon's top officials (the so-called Saturday Night Massacre), but also by the resignation and/or arrest of several of his top advisers. Events culminated in Nixon's resignation on AUGUST 9th, 1974, just ahead of a House Judiciary Committee vote which would probably have impeached him. Gerald Ford became President and Nelson Rockefeller was approved as Vice President, thereby becoming the first totally unelected executive in our nation's history. A month later, Ford pardoned Nixon for any crimes he might have committed during his five-and-a-half years as President, and soon had to deal with a hostile nation. He also had to deal with the Energy Crisis, caused by an Arab embargo on oil to the U.S. in EARLY 1974.

In LATE 1974, there was the biennial election of the entire House of Representatives and thirty-four Senators. The result was a landslide for the Democrats, unprecedented since 1934. The Congress was presumably "veto-proof" - if all the Democrats voted for a measure, President Ford couldn't veto it, as they had a two-thirds majority in both Houses. This 94th Congress, coming into being on a wave of voter activity into a city where almost the whole government was accused of being do-nothing or criminal, surprised many people with its activity, attacking problems such as the mess of Congressional procedure and that of New York City with energy and even results, indicating what we may hope to be a resurgence of the American spirit.

South Vietnam fell to the North in EARLY 1975, a final end to the more than two decades of suffering endured by the South-East Asian countries.

In LATE 1975, Massachusetts passed a tough gun law, providing a mandatory prison sentence of one year for anyone caught with an illegal firearm.

So many other issues grasped the country while we were in high school. There was hope of extending the U.S.'s border two hundred miles out to sea, to protect our fishing from foreign countries. The Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), providing for complete equality for the sexes under the law, came close to passing; people agitated for the "State of Cape Cod," number fifty-one. The Energy Crisis brought the question of oil drilling off New England to the fore - Durham, New Hampshire, rejected a proposed refinery there. New York City went broke and the nation slowly urged the even slower President to do something. The CIA and FBI came under increasing scrutiny for their high-handedness in recent history, so much so that in an overreaction these necessary organizations are being hobbled perhaps too much. And nearby Boston remained a source of some controversy. A Dr. Kenneth Edelin, of Boston City Hospital, performed an abortion, and was tried, convicted, and appealed, opening up the whole abortion controversy again. In SEPTEMBER 1974 a massive plan to bus blacks from Roxbury to South Boston schools, and South Boston whites to Roxbury schools, went into effect, creating major tensions and several racial conflicts. The First Lady (Mrs. Betty Ford) surprised the country with her liberal attitudes on abortion, premarital sex, marijuana; and her (and Happy Rockefeller, Nelson's wife) mastectomy brought the whole subject of breast cancer out into the open, undoubtedly saving many women's lives.

Finally, in 1976, we again face the Olympics and Presidential election, in which we find, as we go to press, two very lonely Republican candidates - the incumbent Gerald Ford, and Ronald Reagan; and approximately a dozen Democratic hopefuls - Ted Kennedy, Frank Church, George Wallace, Morris Udall, Henry Jackson, Hubert Humphrey, etc. There's also this country's birthday coming up, the bicentennial, July fourth, one thousand nine hundred and seventy-six. This event has been much exploited commercially, and is often referred to as the BUYcentennial. But the nation is also being infected with a true spirit of patriotism, and is determined to improve life at home and around the globe.

In the more mundane world of Harwich High School, life went on. There seemed to be a disproportionate degree of teacher illnesses, as it were, with Mr. Davis out for three months of 1973, Mr. Atwood missed two months of early 1975, and Mr. Larson was absent for two months of our senior year. Other teachers, or their families, were affected, Mr. Mangelinkx and Mr. Fede, fortunately, during the summer. Fully, ten teacher replacements were effected between 1972 and 1976.

In SEPTEMBER 1975 the new technical school opened in Harwich and this school lost about one hundred students, who left for "the tech." This school drew students from all over the Cape, and gave our school teams a run for the money in most sports.

Several new fads hit the country and HHS during this time. Nationwide, there was the phenomena of JAWS, a blockbuster movie about a shark, and THE GODFATHER, a best-seller novel and the #1 box-office hit movie about the Mafia; streaking, the art of running or walking in the buff; and nostalgia, about the 20's, 30's, 50's and even the 60's. In Harwich it was mostly appearance - jean jackets were in, as were "survivor jackets" for awhile; Converse sneakers and platform shoes were in; and hairstyles for both sexes became shorter. And there were words - "rookie" was big, then was replaced by the ever popular "turkey." The expressions "Keep on truckin'" and "Dyn-o-mite!" were also in vogue.

The class of 1976 learned and grew during its stay at HHS, and wouldn't trade those four years for anything. With all its faults, we love it still. We've graduated, but we won't forget.
